The Value of Good Digestion

Is easy to figure if you know what your stomach is worth. Kodol keeps the stomach at par value, by insuring good digestion. Kodol cures Dyspepsia.

Kodol insures good digestion by absolutely duplicating Nature's normal process, in perfectly digesting all food taken into the stomach.

While Kodol is doing this, the stomach is resting and becoming strong and healthy. A strong and healthy stomach guarantees a sound and active brain.

The man with a sound stomach—a stomach that is doing for the body just what Nature intended it to do—is the man who is always prepared for any emergency. He is "there with the goods."

The man with a sick stomach, is a man sick all over. When the stomach is irritated by undigested food, the blood and heart are directly affected. Then dizziness, unnatural sleepiness, sick-headaches, vertigo and fainting spells, and even serious brain trouble develop. Kodol will prevent these.

Spurring the stomach and brain to special effort by "tonics" and "stimulants" doesn't cure anything, or accomplish any good. Neither does dieting. Indigestion and the serious ailments which it induces can be averted and corrected only by natural means.

Kodol supplies this natural means. It performs the stomach's work for it—just as the stomach should perform it—while the stomach takes a little rest, "for the stomach's sake."

Our Guarantee

Go to your druggist today and get a dollar bottle. Then after you have used the entire contents of the bottle if you can honestly say: "This is not the best I have ever used. I have used Kodol's Kidney Remedy for nervous exhaustion and kidney trouble and am free to say that it will do all that you claim for it." Kodol's Kidney Remedy has restored health and strength to thousands of weak, run down people. Contains no harmful drugs and is pleasant to take. Sold by all druggists.

Kodol is prepared at the laboratories of E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago.

HOW THE THIEF GOT IN AND OUT.

By T. ANTHONY TWINING.
[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

I was telegraphed to come at once to the country residence of Hugo Van Vliet, and, being a detective, I knew it meant that my professional services would be required. Mr. Van Vliet met me at the station and while taking me to his house in his runabout motor car told me what had happened. He had a number of guests in his house, nearly all of whom were, like himself, very wealthy. It was his first season there, the house having been recently finished, and he had opened it with what he considered a distinguished circle of friends. They were all high class society people with a British lord thrown in to give the party eclat.

Nearly every night some one of his guests had been robbed of either money or jewels or both. After the first disappearance he had enjoined all of them to be careful to lock their doors and had bolts put on every door. For a few nights after this there were no robberies, but then they commenced again. The Britisher (the Lord Mannerleigh) lady had been robbed of some superb jewels. The singular part of it was that after the valuables were taken, though the thief could only have escaped by the door, it remained locked.

While all were at dinner I was shown the rooms, examining the approaches, the connections with other rooms, the windows and lastly the locks and bolts. This done, I sent for the host.

"Mr. Van Vliet," I said, "I presume there are times when your guests are out of doors amusing themselves."

"Yes, both morning and afternoon."

"The maids get through putting the rooms in order in the morning, I suppose, and in the afternoon the upstairs is deserted?"

"Yes."

"Some one at such time has fixed the rooms to be entered."

"Then it must be one of the servants."

"The thief is not one of the servants. I suspect one of your guests."

"You are mistaken."

"Very well, I will accuse no one. I must either catch the rogue in the act or the case goes by default. No one has yet seen me. Tonight I will sleep in the village, and tomorrow I will arrive as one of your guests. I have my evening dress with me and can make a presentable appearance. I shall be a trifle brusque in manner, for I shall hall from the far west. My wealth will be my principal claim to your friendship. I will be John Rogers, a mine owner."

As Mr. Rogers I arrived the next afternoon, went to my room and moved the bed so that by putting out my hand I could switch on the electric lights. Then I dressed and went down to dinner. At table I talked a good deal of my mines and my taste for jewels. Speaking of the latter, I said that I had a great fancy for sapphires and was making up a lot of them to have made into a necklace to take back west to my wife for an anniversary wedding present. I said I kept those I had collected with me and would be happy to show them after dinner. At this Mr. Van Vliet frowned, the conversation was changed, and the jewels were not produced.

That night when all the others had retired I went to my room, locked and bolted my door, put a small box under my pillow, then went to bed and lay awake waiting. About 3 in the morning I heard a slight mouselike sound—so slight that it was scarcely distinguishable at the door. Then I heard indications of some one fumbling about the room. I had left no valuables on the dresser or in my pockets, so the thief must come nearer. Presently I fancied a hand slipping under the mattress, but this might be fancy. What was not fancy was a grasp on the box under my pillow. I caught the arm of a figure kneeling beside the bed. Then I turned on the lights. I held a woman, and that woman was Lady Mannerleigh.

"Ah," I said, "I supposed his lordship was doing these jobs."

Jumping out of bed, I pushed a button. A servant on watch answered the summons.

"Stay here with this woman," I said, "and don't let her go out."

I went softly into the hall and saw a white figure slip into Lord Mannerleigh's room. Mannerleigh had evidently been watching. I locked his lordship's door and, returning to my room, stood watch over the countess while the servant went for Mr. Van Vliet. When he came he received the surprise of his life.

When the earl and his lady had been turned over to the police—he was an English valet and she a lady's maid with forged letters—I showed Mr. Van Vliet a little hole in the door of every room that had been entered, except the thief's, which had been plugged, over the lock and bolt, each end of the plug having been dabbed with white enamel like the door so nicely as to be almost unnoticeable. Through the hole a wire with a joint had been pushed. When the joint was inside the room a string attached to the inner end of the wire was pulled, and the part beyond the joint was drawn over the bolt, which was then shot.

The key was turned with slender tweezers. In this way the door was again locked and bolted after the departure of the thief.

I had detected evidence of these holes on my examination and spotted his lordship for the thief because he claimed to have been robbed while there had been no hole bored in his door.

The Swine or the Flower?

Oh me! I saw a huge and loathsome sty,
Wherein a drove of wallowing swine were barred,
Whose banquet shocked the nostril and the eye;
Then spoke a voice, "Behold the source of LARD!"

I fled, and saw a field that seemed at first
One glistening mass of roses pure and white,
With dewy buds mid dark green foliage nursed;
And as I lingered o'er the lovely sight,
The summer breeze that cooled that Southern scene,
Whispered, "Behold the source of COTTOLENE!"

"Nature's Gift from the Sunny South"

COTTOLENE is a pure and wholesome frying and shortening medium, made from refined cottonseed. There is not an ounce of hog fat in it to make food unwholesome, greasy and indigestible. As evidence of its superiority, COTTOLENE received Grand Prize (highest possible award) at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition.
